Let’s work together

Our students are taught to explore, question, challenge, and think differently. They can bring fresh ideas to your business, whether for a work placement, short-term project or graduate job.

What makes our students stand out?

construct reasoned arguments exercise critical judgement find solutions
work independently communicate effectively investigate
research analyse

collaborate
Our students have a broad knowledge of Sociology that includes areas such as Social Anthropology, Culture and Society, Sociological Analysis and Media Studies.

In particular our students:

- analyse, assess, and communicate empirical sociological information
- formulate and investigate sociologically informed questions
- identify and comment on different research strategies and methods
- recognise the relevance of sociological knowledge to social, public and civic policy
- conduct sociological research in a preliminary way
- design questionnaires and collect survey and interview data
- apply methodologies applicable to media research
- demonstrate high levels of numeracy and confidence in using statistical techniques and computer-based programs

www.essex.ac.uk/business/talent/placements