MA Psychoanalytic Studies

You’re taught by internationally-renowned clinicians and academics to explore how the unconscious affects individuals, societies and cultures. From how we and our culture is viewed from a psychoanalytic perspective, to how the notion of the ‘Freudian unconscious’ shaped western culture.

You learn a framework of psychoanalytic concepts and methodology, enriched by a range of interdisciplinary topics on groups, society culture and myth.

Starting with the cultural milieu from which psychoanalysis emerged, you begin learning about Freud’s ideas and follow on through the development of psychoanalysis through the work of Klein, Winnicott, Bion, Lacan and others.

Who is it for?
If you’re looking for clinical training or are an established clinician and want to ground your work in psychoanalysis, or you come from other fields in the humanities and social sciences, our course is for you.
