Economic Researcher

Regeneris Consulting provides independent, research-based economic advice to public and private sector clients

We work throughout the UK from our offices in Manchester and London. Our team of consultants and analysts help clients to understand the economic performance of sectors and locations, gauge the economic impact of major projects, secure investment and evaluate government programmes.

We are expanding and have an opportunity for an economic researcher, ideally in our Manchester office.

This is an exciting opportunity for a bright candidate with:

- a good first degree (2:1 or better) in economics or a closely related subject
- a real interest in economic development and regeneration issues
- strong numerical and analytical skills
- excellent report writing and presentation skills

It would also be desirable to have:

- a relevant Masters level degree, and
- relevant work experience in economics, economic research and/or consultancy.

Regeneris Consulting offers an excellent opportunity for training and career progression. We have competitive starting salaries and offer a range of other benefits. We welcome applications from everyone and value diversity in our workforce.

Please send your CV (two pages max) and short covering letter by email to Ruth Hurd, Office Manager (r.hurd@regeneris.co.uk). Please type RECRUIT2013 in the subject bar so that we can automatically acknowledge your application.

Clearly state why you believe you can help Regeneris support its clients and how you meet the criteria listed above.

The closing date for applications is Friday 9th August 2013, with an anticipated start in mid to late September 2013.