Top ten for research

Essex was placed ninth nationally in the 2008 Research Assessment Exercise, re-confirming its place as the UK's leading university for the social sciences with politics ranked first, sociology joint first, economics third and linguistics fourth best nationally. We were also rated second in the UK for history and for accounting and finance. Our scientists are taking a global lead in pure and applied human sciences and information technologies, from genetics to ecosystems. All our departments generate internationally excellent research and this underpins our masters and doctoral programmes.
