Executive education

Whether you’re looking to boost your own skills, develop your team, or embrace large-scale organisational change, we can help you turn ‘business as usual’ into something far more productive.

1. You’ll get an executive education, and not merely training. Backed by insights from academics and industry practitioners, we create a learning package for you based on your needs, and around your sector, so it’s always relevant.

2. You’ll be at the centre of learning. This will be an immersive, interesting and enjoyable experience. We don’t just give lectures, we create inspiring and stimulating interactive sessions – because you will learn more when you construct, develop and share knowledge as a group.

3. We always make sure we develop you as an individual, while also making sure your new knowledge has impact on your wider organisation.

“Having delivered executive education to a number of organisations, from multinational FTSE 100 companies through to joint ventures, and to the public sector, I’m convinced these interventions can make a significant difference. We take time to listen, and to understand the issues. We tailor our sessions to your needs. At Essex, executive education isn’t something that’s done to you, it’s created and delivered with you.”

Professor Nigel Pye, Professor of Business and Management and MBA Director, Essex Business School
Talk to us about how our executive education can add fresh thinking to help your people, and your business, flourish.

Contact us
Professor Nigel Pye
T 01206 873072
E ebs@essex.ac.uk

A really intelligent investment
At Essex, we’re flexible and open-minded. We understand business, and get that every business is different. We also understand how investing in your people, and getting the most from them is one of the best business decisions you’ll make. Based on our internationally-diverse MBA, and the expertise of our world-leading finance and accounting groups, we have the hands-on solutions to meet your needs and develop the people in your organisation to help it flourish.

That could mean signing-up to a one-off MBA module – perfect for smaller groups – to arranging a more varied course that we run at your own workplace. Or, it might mean we deliver bespoke business tutoring, tailored exactly to your needs, that runs from half a day, to a whole year.

Talk to us about how our executive education can add fresh thinking to help your people, and your business, flourish.

www.essex.ac.uk/business