Undergraduate Optional Modules for LLB Law Degree Transfer Scheme (1 + 2 and 2 + 1)

2018-19
Supplementary guide: Undergraduate Optional Modules for LLB Law Degree Transfer Scheme

The School of Law will issue you with an Options Handbook which will explain how to select your options. You will also find lots of information about all the modules we run to help you make your selection. Once you have registered with the University of Essex, you will be able to access the eNROL system and choose your modules.

The following is important information specifically for students joining the School of Law on the 1 + 2 or 2 + 1 degree transfer schemes.

You may have already taken an equivalent to some of our modules whilst studying at your first institution. If you have already taken an optional module equivalent to one offered at Essex, including Company Law, Family Law, or the Law of Evidence, then we cannot allow you to take the same module at Essex. If in doubt please contact the School of Law for guidance.

Please note that some of our options have limited places if they involve practical work. They are:

- LW237 Clinical Legal Education (placements need to be secured by the beginning of October)
- LW250 Legal Advice Case Work
- LW352 Advance Legal Advice Case Work
- LW336 Alternative Dispute Resolution: Mediation Theory and Practice

How to choose your optional modules

The following grids show you which modules are compulsory, and where you can elect to take optional modules. When you start at Essex you will be given access to our module choice system called eNROL, which allows you to confirm your choices.

At Essex Law School, all modules contain a number of credits, and for each year of study at Essex you must take 120 credits in total. All modules hold either 15 credits if they are taught during one term only (either autumn or spring), or 30 credits if they take place over both autumn and spring terms. Exceptions to this are the Career Management Skills modules (taken by second year entrants) which do not hold credits. Where you have option spaces running across both autumn and spring, you can either select a single 30 credit option, or a 15 credit autumn option followed by a 15 credit spring option.

If you are applying to join Essex for the final year of your studies, please note that you must take LW302 European Union Law in order to be awarded a qualifying law degree for the purpose of practicing law in England and Wales.
